50X1-HUM

The Chinese Communist Army is creating six anti-aircraft divisions from anti-aircraft units in various field armies. Three of these have already been created: the first is responsible for Central and South China and is in the Wuhan area; the second is responsible for North China and is at Peiping; and the third is responsible for the Yangtze Valley and is at Nanking. At present there is only one regiment in each of the remaining three areas: the Northeast, Northwest, and Southwest. All are being expanded to division size. Approximately half of their equipment is to be supplied by the Chinese Communist Army; the balance will be provided by the Soviets.

This document is hereby regraded to CONFIDENTIAL in accordance with the letter of 16 October 1978 from the Director of Central Intelligence to the Archivist of the United States.
